FOR COACHES + CONSULTANTS

12 Fable 5 Prompts That Package Your Brain Into an Offer.

Claude Fable 5 is the strongest model Anthropic has ever shipped — and these prompts run on any Claude model you already pay for. These 12 prompts turn the expertise trapped in your head into a named framework, a productized offer, and a delivery system — built only from the methods you already use with real clients.

WORKS ON ANY CLAUDE MODEL

Fable 5 is included on Max and Team Premium plans (up to 50% of your weekly limits). On Pro and Team Standard it runs on usage credits. Every prompt in this pack is model-agnostic — it works on whichever Claude model you have.

COPY-PASTE PROMPTS	PARTS PER PROMPT: ROLE TO FORMAT	REUSABLE ASSET PER PROMPT

How to run these in 3 steps.

No technical setup. If you can paste text, you can run every prompt in this pack.

1

Open Claude and pick Fable 5

Go to `claude.ai` (or Claude Code if you use it) and select Fable 5 in the model picker. On Max and Team Premium it is included, up to 50% of your weekly usage; on Pro it runs on usage credits. Any Claude model will run these prompts.

2

Paste the prompt, fill the [BRACKETS]

Copy a prompt from this pack exactly as written. Everything in `[UPPERCASE BRACKETS]` is yours to fill — how you actually work with clients, your session notes, your real engagement history. The more real detail you paste, the better the output. Fable 5 handles huge amounts of context, so do not summarize — paste the whole thing.

3

Save the output as a template

Every prompt here produces something reusable — a named framework, an offer ladder, a discovery script, an onboarding kit. Save each one. That is the point: you keep the asset long after any one model's pricing changes.

Pro habit: end every session with one more line.

Before you close the chat, type: "Turn what you just built into a fill-in-the-blanks template I can reuse for every future client." Fable 5 will package its own work. That template is yours forever.

01 The Signature Framework Extractor

When to use: first — everything else in this pack is built on the framework this prompt pulls out of your head.

```
You are a methodology architect who turns a coach's working habits into a named, teachable framework.

GOAL: Extract my signature framework — the repeatable steps I actually walk clients through — then name it and structure it so I can sell it and teach from it.

CONTEXT: What I coach: [YOUR NICHE + WHO YOU WORK WITH]. Here is a messy brain-dump of how I actually get clients from stuck to result: [DUMP EVERYTHING — LONG IS GOOD]. 2-3 real engagements, start to finish, anonymized: [WALK THROUGH THEM].

CONSTRAINTS: Build ONLY from what I pasted — never add steps I do not actually do. 3-6 steps maximum. The name must be plain-language memorable, not corporate jargon. Flag any step where my brain-dump was thin so I can fill it in.

PROCESS: Find the repeated pattern across my engagements, draft 3 name options, then write each step with what it does and why it comes in that order.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Framework name (3 options), one-line promise, step-by-step breakdown, gaps flagged.
```

PRO TIP Do the brain-dump by voice memo, transcribe it, and paste the transcript — spoken you is more honest than typing you.

02 The Productized Offer Ladder

When to use: when every engagement is custom-scoped and you are re-inventing your offer on every sales call.

```
You are a productization strategist for consultants who sell custom work and want fixed-scope offers.

GOAL: Turn my custom engagement history into a 3-tier offer ladder — an entry diagnostic, a core program, and a premium tier — each with fixed scope, deliverables, and boundaries.

CONTEXT: My last [NUMBER] engagements: what each client needed, what I delivered, how long each took: [LIST THEM HONESTLY]. My framework from prompt 01: [PASTE IT]. What clients ask for most: [THE REAL PATTERNS]. What I never want to do again: [BE HONEST].

CONSTRAINTS: Every tier is built only from work I have genuinely delivered — no aspirational services. Each tier has a hard "not included" list. The entry tier must be deliverable in under [HOURS] hours. No pricing invented — leave a [YOUR PRICE] slot per tier.

PROCESS: Cluster my past work into patterns, map clusters to tiers, then write each tier as a sales-page section.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Ladder table (tier, promise, deliverables, timeline, not-included), then sales-page copy per tier.
```

PRO TIP The "not included" list is the productization — scope creep dies in writing, not in conversation.

03 The Methodology-to-Curriculum Builder

When to use: when you want to move from 1:1 delivery to a group program without watering down what works.

```
You are a curriculum designer who converts 1:1 coaching methodologies into group-program structures.

GOAL: Turn my framework into a [NUMBER OF WEEKS]-week group program curriculum — module by module — that preserves the results my 1:1 clients get.

CONTEXT: My framework: [PASTE FROM PROMPT 01]. How a 1:1 engagement actually flows, including where clients get stuck: [DESCRIBE HONESTLY]. Group size I am planning: [NUMBER]. Format: [LIVE CALLS / RECORDED + LIVE Q&A / COHORT].

CONSTRAINTS: Every module maps to a step of my real framework — no filler modules to pad the week count. Each session needs: teaching point, exercise, and the homework that creates movement between sessions. Flag which 1:1 moments do NOT translate to group and need another mechanism.

PROCESS: Map framework steps to weeks, design each session, then stress-test where a group of [NUMBER] would stall.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Curriculum table (week, module, session plan, exercise, homework), plus the does-not-translate list.
```

PRO TIP The does-not-translate list is where group programs die — solve those three items before you sell a single seat.

04 The Discovery Call Script + Filter

When to use: before your next discovery call — walk in with a diagnosis structure instead of winging rapport.

```
You are a sales coach for consultants whose discovery calls should feel like a first working session, not a pitch.

GOAL: Build my discovery call system: the structure, the diagnostic questions that surface the real problem, a filter for who I should NOT take, and the close.

CONTEXT: My offer: [PASTE YOUR LADDER FROM PROMPT 02]. My best-fit clients so far and why they worked: [REAL EXAMPLES]. My worst engagements and the early warning signs I ignored: [BE BRUTALLY HONEST]. How my calls currently go wrong: [THE PATTERN].

CONSTRAINTS: The call gives real value — the prospect should leave with one genuine insight even if we never work together. No fake scarcity or pressure lines. The filter comes from my actual bad-fit patterns, not generic red flags. The close offers ONE next step, matched to the tier that fits.

PROCESS: Structure the call arc, write the question bank, build the disqualification filter, then script the close for each tier.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Call agenda with timings, question bank, red-flag filter checklist, three close scripts.
```

PRO TIP Run your last three lost calls through the filter — if it would not have caught them, paste more detail and rerun.

05 The Three-Tier Proposal Template

When to use: build once — then every proposal is a 20-minute fill-in instead of a Sunday-night rewrite.

```
You are a proposal strategist for consultants who close high-trust engagements without 20-page documents.

GOAL: Build my reusable proposal template — three options per proposal (good / better / premium), framed around the client's outcome, readable in five minutes.

CONTEXT: My offer ladder: [PASTE FROM PROMPT 02]. A recent proposal I sent, and what happened: [PASTE IT + THE OUTCOME]. What clients hesitate on before signing: [THE REAL OBJECTIONS]. My voice: [PASTE 2 EMAILS YOU HAVE WRITTEN].

CONSTRAINTS: Structure: their situation in their words, the outcome, three options, timeline, next step. The middle option is the one I want picked — design the contrast for it. No invented case results anywhere; proof slots marked [REAL PROOF] for me to fill. Pricing stays as [YOUR PRICE] slots. One page of substance, maximum two.

PROCESS: Analyze what worked and stalled in my pasted proposal, design the skeleton, then write the template.

OUTPUT FORMAT: The complete template with [BRACKETED] slots, plus a 5-line per-client customization checklist.
```

PRO TIP Open every proposal with the client's own words from the discovery call — it is the cheapest trust you will ever buy.

06 The Client Transformation Case Study

When to use: after any engagement with a result worth telling — while the details are still fresh.

```
You are a case study writer for coaches — evidence-first, zero hype.

GOAL: Turn one real client engagement into a case study for my site, proposals, and LinkedIn — strictly facts, with [ASK CLIENT] slots for anything not on record.

CONTEXT: The engagement: where the client started, what we did, what changed: [FACTS ONLY — WHAT YOU CAN DOCUMENT]. Their own words from sessions, messages, or feedback: [PASTE VERBATIM QUOTES]. What I am allowed to share: [NAMED / ANONYMIZED / NEEDS PERMISSION].

CONSTRAINTS: Never invent or extrapolate a result — if a number is not documented, insert [ASK CLIENT] instead. No "10x" language. The transformation is shown through before/after specifics and their quotes, not my adjectives. Respect every privacy line I set.

PROCESS: Build the fact timeline, find the strongest documented change, then write long and short versions around it.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Full case study (400 words), LinkedIn version (150 words), proposal paragraph, and the [ASK CLIENT] list.
```

PRO TIP Send the [ASK CLIENT] list as one short email — most clients happily supply the numbers you were afraid to claim.

07 The Lead Magnet Extractor

When to use: when your list growth is stalled and your best teaching is locked inside paid sessions.

```
You are a lead magnet strategist who carves free assets out of a coach's paid methodology without giving away the engagement.

GOAL: Take ONE step of my framework and turn it into a lead magnet — a self-diagnostic, worksheet, or mini-guide — that gives a real quick win and points to working with me.

CONTEXT: My framework: [PASTE FROM PROMPT 01]. The step that creates the fastest visible "aha" for clients: [WHICH ONE + WHY]. Who this attracts: [YOUR IDEAL CLIENT]. What they have usually already tried: [SO WE DO NOT REPEAT IT].

CONSTRAINTS: The free asset solves one narrow problem completely — no teaser content that only sells. Doable in under 20 minutes by the reader. It surfaces the problem my paid offer solves, so the next step is obvious without a hard pitch. No fabricated statistics or results anywhere in the copy.

PROCESS: Pick the format that fits the step, design the exercise, write the asset, then the opt-in copy.

OUTPUT FORMAT: The complete lead magnet content, opt-in headline + 3 bullets, and a 3-email follow-up outline.
```

PRO TIP A scored self-diagnostic beats a PDF of tips — people finish what tells them something about themselves.

08 The Signature Talk Outline

When to use: before pitching podcasts, stages, or running your own webinar — one talk, reused everywhere.

```
You are a speaking coach who builds signature talks that position an expert without sliding into an infomercial.

GOAL: Build my signature 30-minute talk (with a 45-minute webinar variant) around my framework — deliverable on any podcast or stage, quietly selling my work.

CONTEXT: My framework: [PASTE FROM PROMPT 01]. The misconception my audience holds that keeps them stuck: [THE BELIEF YOU KEEP CORRECTING]. Real client moments I can tell as stories, within privacy limits: [2-3 ANONYMIZED STORIES]. My audience: [WHO IS IN THE ROOM].

CONSTRAINTS: Teach 2 framework steps fully — real value, not a trailer. Every claim backed by a pasted story or framed as opinion; no invented statistics. The offer moment is one slide, one sentence, one next step. Webinar variant adds interaction, not padding.

PROCESS: Build the belief-shift arc, slot the stories, then write the outline for both lengths.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Minute-by-minute outline (30 + 45 min), hook options, and the offer transition line.
```

PRO TIP Deliver it three times, paste back what landed flat, and have Fable revise — a signature talk is versioned, not written.

09 The Client Onboarding Kit

When to use: the day after your next yes — first impressions set the tone for the whole engagement.

```
You are a client-experience designer for coaches and consultants.

GOAL: Build my onboarding kit: welcome message, intake questionnaire, expectation-setting one-pager (how we work, boundaries, what success looks like), and the first-session agenda.

CONTEXT: My engagement structure: [PASTE YOUR OFFER TIER]. Questions I always end up asking in session one: [LIST THEM]. Where past engagements got messy — scope, boundaries, response times, no-shows: [HONEST EXAMPLES]. My working style: [HOW YOU ACTUALLY OPERATE].

CONSTRAINTS: The expectation one-pager addresses every past mess I listed — politely, in advance, in writing. The intake questionnaire is under 12 questions and every answer gets used in session one. Warm but clear; no legalese, no corporate onboarding-speak. Nothing promises outcomes — it promises the process.

PROCESS: Map the first two weeks of a new engagement, place each asset at its moment, then write all four.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Four labeled, ready-to-send assets plus a send-order timeline.
```

PRO TIP Every boundary you have ever had to enforce awkwardly goes in the one-pager — clients respect what they agreed to upfront.

10 The Between-Session Action System

When to use: after every session — turn your scribbled notes into client momentum in ten minutes.

```
You are a coaching-operations designer who turns session notes into client follow-through.

GOAL: Build my between-session system: a repeatable template that converts my raw session notes into a client recap + action plan, plus a mid-week check-in message format — then run it once on the real notes I paste.

CONTEXT: My raw notes from a real session, as messy as they are: [PASTE THEM]. What this client is working toward: [THEIR STATED GOAL]. How my clients actually behave between sessions: [THE HONEST PATTERN]. Session cadence: [WEEKLY / BIWEEKLY / MONTHLY].

CONSTRAINTS: Maximum 3 actions per week — an overwhelmed client does zero. Each action states the what, the why (tied to their goal), and a done-by day. The recap quotes their own insight from the session back to them. The check-in message is 2 lines, support-toned, never surveillance.

PROCESS: Design the template, then apply it to my pasted notes as a worked example.

OUTPUT FORMAT: The reusable template, the filled example, and the check-in message format.
```

PRO TIP This is your renewals engine — clients who can see their own movement between sessions do not wonder what they pay for.

11 The Testimonial Interview Kit

When to use: at every engagement wrap-up — stop asking "could you write a few words?" and start running a 15-minute interview.

```
You are an interviewer who extracts specific, credible testimonials from coaching clients — the kind that name real moments instead of generic praise.

GOAL: Build my testimonial interview kit: the invitation message, a 15-minute interview question set that surfaces before/after specifics, and the process for turning their answers into approved testimonial copy.

CONTEXT: The engagement we completed: [WHAT WE WORKED ON + WHAT CHANGED, FACTS ONLY]. Moments this client seemed most relieved or energized: [FROM YOUR SESSION MEMORY]. Where I want testimonials to work hardest: [SALES PAGE / PROPOSALS / LINKEDIN].

CONSTRAINTS: Questions pull specifics — "what did you almost not sign up because of?", "what changed first?" — never "were you happy?". The final copy uses ONLY their words; my edit is trimming, not rewriting. Every testimonial goes back to the client for written approval before it appears anywhere. No incentivized or coached answers.

PROCESS: Write the invitation, build the question arc from skeptic-to-result, then define the trim-approve-publish workflow.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Invitation message, 10 interview questions in order, approval message template, formatting guide per placement.
```

PRO TIP Record the call (with permission) — their exact phrasing is the asset, and it always beats what they would write.

Why interviews beat written requests.

A written request gets you "great coach, highly recommend" — pleasant, and useless against a skeptical buyer. A 15-minute interview gets the hesitation they almost did not overcome, the first thing that shifted, and the moment they knew it was working. Those specifics are what a prospect on the fence actually reads. Run the interview at the natural high point: the wrap-up session, while the work is vivid.

12 The Hourly-to-Value Repricing Brief

When to use: when you are still selling hours and every raise feels like an apology.

```
You are a pricing strategist for consultants moving from hourly billing to outcome-framed engagements.

GOAL: Reframe my pricing from hours to outcomes — the positioning language, the engagement structure, and the script for moving existing clients — using only my real delivery history as evidence.

CONTEXT: How I price now: [CURRENT MODEL + RATES]. My last [NUMBER] engagements: what the client got, what it took, what they told me it meant to them: [REAL HISTORY ONLY]. My offer ladder: [PASTE FROM PROMPT 02]. What scares me about changing: [HONEST].

CONSTRAINTS: Value framing built ONLY from outcomes I have documented — no hypothetical ROI math, no promised results. No income claims in any client-facing copy. Existing clients get a grandfather path, not an ultimatum. Flag which engagements in my history genuinely do not fit value-based framing yet.

PROCESS: Extract the documented outcomes, rewrite each tier's framing around them, then script the existing-client conversation.

OUTPUT FORMAT: Positioning one-pager, reframed tier descriptions, transition script, and the does-not-fit list.
```

PRO TIP Run this last — it feeds on everything prompts 01, 02, and 06 produced. That is the packaging flywheel.
